PLANS FOR SOUTHERN DEVELOPMENT.—The want of capital in the South, which is now so sensibly felt by the planters, with their bare yet fertile lands, and also the enterprising business men of that section, has suggested many plans for advancing the general prosperity by again bringing forth the capabilities and resources of the country, and building up its trade. Among other projects lately canvassed, which appear to be practicable, and certainly would be of the highest usefulness if carried out, is the establishment of a joint stock company, with a capital of $5,000,000, to be used for the development of the industrial resources of the Southern States. It is proposed to raise this capital in the North, commencing at Baltimore, and even to seek it in Europe, if necessary. It is to be loaned to planters and landowners in the South, secured by mortgages on property, the cash valuation of which is to be at least 50 per cent. over the amount advanced. For this the mortgager is to pay interest at the legal rate prevailing in his State; but, in addition, he is to bind himself to consign the products of his estate to the agents of the company, at some specified point, who will thus act as factors, and find interest enough in the project, it is believed, to insure its success. The usual factors' commissions of 2 1/2 per cent. on the sales, as well as purchases for the planters, would thus accrue to the joint stock company. While, therefore, the planter would realize the immediate benefit of the needed loan, the company's business, if properly managed, it would seem, must be handsomely profitable. In addition to this scheme, a number of American and English bankers and capitalists interested in the production of cotton, are making inquiries in relation to organizing a national cotton growing company in the South, the latter being influenced chiefly by the failure of the English attempt to produce the staple in India to the extent desired. In connection with all these plans, the labor question, of course, comes up, and much will depend upon the successful issue with the freedman in his relations to the white population.—Baltimore Sun.

Dr. Vaughan has published in the British Quarterly Review a record of a conversation which he had at Washington with Gen. Grant. We copy the following from it: "Say what you will," said the General, "this war has been the biggest job of its sort that has been done in this world; and it will be a chapter to itself in the history of war; nothing like it has gone before." This is evidently a high compliment to the valor, skill and endurance of the late Confederates.
